Indian cricket team need to improve

India suffered string of defeats in Tests played abroad. The Indian cricket team under Virat Kohli is ambitious - no doubt but it has some way to go before the ambition is realised.

England condemned India to a 1-3 series loss. Of its last nine Test series outside Asia, India has won only one — against a less-than-impressive West Indies. India arrived in England this summer as the world's No.1 Test team. The batting, however, let the side down, struggling against swing and seam. Preparation, as several former batting greats have observed, is the key.

Kohli, Four years ago, he was in dreadful form. This time around, he has been outstanding, having accumulated 544 runs in four Test matches. Kohli has shown patience and a kind of resolve never seen before. Currently he is the finest batsman in the world. India is, however, over-reliant on him. His captaincy, too, can improve. A captain can only be as good as his team, and Kohli's legacy as a leader will be judged by the squad's performance on tough tours.

The coach can lead the side by starting to act and perform instead of constantly bragging about the current lot and shaming the earlier stalwarts.

It is sad to watch Indian batsmen succumb to an off-spinner, who was instrumental in England conceding very little lead. Before that we allowed England tail to flourish and get them to 246. Maybe, introduction of spin to take advantage of the follow through foot marks of Ishant Sharma would have contained them to a score below 180. Because, it was the foot mark that was exploited by their spinner. Partly though the batsmen were responsible, one can't lose sight of Captain's planning deficiency.

India has now plenty of new players in Cricket. But the selection of players are monopolised by selectors, the reason they know best.. No country can win all the matches but the self-inflicted defeat hurts the lovers of cricket in India. It seems the test team is become stagnant because too much of stress on T20 and one day cricket.. Let the young players be given chance and selectors, the so called moghuls of cricket world of India, be changed.

By losing series, India has proved yet again that the players are unable to adapt to foreign conditions which is a cause of concern. Young players should be trained in foreign pitches to experience the conditions which would help at the time of playing tests.

India does not seem to learn from past experiences. The last time they got a drubbing, they came straight from the tour in the Caribbean with no practice matches. This time they have done the same mistake. And bringing in the promising Rishab Pant midway through the series and dropping him at the deep end was cruel on him. Poor lad; needs someone to help him recover his self-confidence. The pace attack did well when the ball was swinging. But they had no answer to the second line of defence of England when the ball became old. India's lone spinner did not do well even when the conditions were favourable to him. Axar and Kuldeep just did not show up.

Virat Koli, though he is in form on his batting, miserably failed to motivate the batting side who were the prey for swing attack and they fumbled to take reasonable score. But he must be appreciated for preventing a whitewash. Indian players must improve their batting skill by playing in all kind of tracks because the opponents also play on the same track.

Verdict on Section 377

We do not understand the massive time and effort wasted on this colonial idea. Such a small percentage of people are LGBTQ, why obsess over them! Consenting adults should be free to choose partners according to their leanings and not be silo'ed into one or the other. There is a broad spectrum of gender identity out there, has always been that way. Historically Indians were never super sensitive about these things and were quite open minded until the monotheistic invaders made it 'illegal'. Let people express not suppress. We hope that India gets it right this time around, and moves forward.

Ten vehicles collide within an hour on E-way on Thursday

By Tutu

NAVI MUMBAI: Ten vehicles collided on the Mumbai bound carriage way of the Mumbai Pune Expressway on Thursday morning around Dheku village. The incident occurred around 8am when an over speeding Eicher tempo driver lost control and crashed with the median safety barrier blocking the first lane. A truck then crashed with the tempo followed by another truck. The second truck was hit by a car with five other cars. This led to one hour long traffic jam. In a yet another collision a car container driver was killed at around 5.30 am after dashing

National Workshop Focuses On 'Importance Of Concierge In Hospitality & Tourism'

By Ashok Dhamija

NAVI MUMBAI: 'Concierge' was a word exclusively used for hotel staff who took care of its guests. As David Rose noted, the meaning of it has changed over the years. It started sounding better than 'personalized' service, which has become a very commoditized word.

Nerul based D. Y. Patil University School of Hospitality & Tourism Studies (DYPU SHTS) recently organized an exclusive National Workshop on the importance of 'Concierge in Hospitality and Tourism'. The workshop conducted by professionals from the industry of the likes of Nilesh Belapallu (St. Regis), Maxim Mascarenhas (ITC Maratha Sheraton) and Anil Jagtap (Courtyard Marriott) witnessed an enthusiastic participations from over 180 participants including fresher's pursuing B.Sc Hospitality curriculum from various institutes.

The workshop began with them familiarizing the students with the duties of concierge, role played by concierge, how the concierge creates networking amongst themselves. The invited speakers latter spoke extensively about the role played by a Concierge Desk / Associate in the Hotel in creating memorable experiences for a guest by doing simple things differently. The students were then briefed about the prestigious Les Clefs d'Or and the prestigious golden keys.

Maxim narrated his personal incidences at ITC Maratha Sheraton. In hotels or resorts, a concierge assists guests by performing various tasks such as making restaurant reservations, booking hotels, arranging for spa services, recommending night life hot spots, booking transportation (like taxi, limousines, airplanes, boats, etc.), coordinating porter service (luggage assistance etc.).

"it was a very informative workshop as they got many new learnings and the experiences shared by the speakers, helped them understand the concept even better," shared Lincoln Reibero a student of the institute.

"The word 'Concierge' exclusively used for hotel staff describes special, personal, and attentive service. The same is the need of the hour of this industry in order to cater the demanding guests. The National level workshop organised by our Asst. Prof. Aarti Pandirkar on behalf of the college was one such initiative undertaken to educate the students of the demand of the industry. The students found the workshop to be very informative and raised numerous queries which was clarified by the expert professionals. Infact many are looking forward to many more of such workshops in the future" shared Vandana Mishra, Director of the institute.
